

Redetermination Process

Redetermination

Medicaid checks each year to make sure you still qualify for benefits. This is called Medicaid redetermination, or “rede.” Rede is different from enrolling in a health plan.

If you have a medical card and SNAP (Food Stamps) or cash benefits, your local DHS office does your rede. If you only have medical coverage, one of the central rede offices may do your rede.

When you get your rede letter in the mail, look for any deadlines. Be sure to send all proof the letter asks for before the deadline. To learn more about rede, go to the Illinois Department of HealthCare and Family Services website at:
